Township to hold additional compost class for 2012

THE WOODLANDS, TEXAS (May 3, 2012) – Due to high demand, The Woodlands Township will host an additional compost class on Saturday, May 12, 2012, from 9 to 10 a.m. at The Woodlands Township Parks, Recreation and Environmental Services building at 8203 Millennium Forest Drive, The Woodlands, Texas 77381. Master gardeners will be on hand to teach this one-hour composting class to area residents. No reservations required.

Attendees will learn how to recycle yard waste into rich and fertile humus, a product gardeners call “black gold.” Residents will also learn what to use in the composting process, how to quicken the natural decomposition process and how to use compost in the garden and yard.

Master gardeners will also teach a mini-class on vermicomposting, or worm composting, with an actual “worm farm” demonstration.

Compost bins will be sold at the event. Each family of class-goers will receive a kitchen scrap bucket, a rain gauge and how-to literature for composting and vermicomposting.
