Bike to Work Day to be celebrated at two locations in The Woodlands

THE WOODLANDS, TEXAS (April 24, 2015) – Two locations in The Woodlands will host the kickoff of the 2015 Bike to Work Day on Tuesday, May 12, 2015, beginning at 6:30 a.m. The Bike to Work Day event will be hosted by The Woodlands Coalition at the new Whole Foods Market in Hughes Landing and at the new location of the Black Walnut Café on the corner of New Trails Drive and Research Forest Drive. Other sponsors of the event include Huntsman and Jones & Carter, Inc.

May is National Bike Month, and the entire month is an opportunity for bicyclists to share the many benefits of cycling. In addition, the week of May 11 to 15 is National Bike to Work Week, and cyclists who live or work in The Woodlands are invited to participate in Bike to Work Day.

Food and refreshments will be available at both locations. At the primary gathering place of Whole Foods Market in Hughes Landing, exhibitors, community organizations, and local bike shops will be present to share cycling information, and participants who sign in will receive a free event T-shirt.

Those interested in participating in the event are encouraged to RSVP with shirt size to David Hitchcock at 281-705-5650 or by email to info@bikethewoodlands.org.
